Sixth Annual Art in the Hollow a success!

Forum Staff

The sixth annual Art in the Hollow was a wonderful success. The weather was beautiful on Saturday June 6, the artists were great, and the attendance was the best yet. Visitors new to the event marveled at the beautiful, picturesque setting.

Entertainment was excellent: the Mariachi Estrella Mexican mariachi band, Young Voter Voices, The Baron of Bubble, John Knowles, Wayward Creek, American Indian Magnet Indian Dancers, Ken Buras, Amit Snir, Eugene Rosso, Dorothy Doring, sound person and singer Paul Garding, Swede Hollow Songs—East Side Thrive Talented Youth, May North Band, Dan Choma, Kamala Chaand Dance, and singer/sound man Kirk Larson.

The sculpture contest winners were Catherine Riley; The Tree, Mike Garlish; the Gallery, and Romi Slowiak; Floating World.

A special thank you to everyone involved, including the Saint Paul Police Department who helped make the sixth annual Art in the Hollow a magnificent success.

New Saint Paul East Side Optimist Club has busy spring

Fred Kaphingst

Optimistic East Sider

The East Side has many reasons to be optimistic and the recently-formed Saint Paul East Side Optimist Club is giving it several more.

The Sandlot Baseball program had its roots in the summer of 2014 during the Saint Paul Police Department's "Safe Summer Nights." This program provided fun activities for kids at various inner-city parks and playgrounds: a jumping castle, climbing wall, and baseball.

Future East Side Optimist Club President Ann Polachek and future

Vice President David Anderson traveled throughout the summer with the police, offering safe "wiffle ball" in conjunction with the other activities. They discovered that most of the children had never swung a bat and some didn't even know how to use a baseball glove. When the nights ended, the kids wanted to keep playing ball!

In August, Anderson published a novella titled Johnny Baseball Seed. The story is about a retiree who rides around the country from town to town, looking for playgrounds and starting pickup baseball games with local kids (drawing them outdoors from the indoor activities of TV and video games). His vehicle is a 26" Schwinn Meridian, three-wheel tricycle, complete with a rear folding basket, handlebar bag and two trailers for baseball equipment.

WEQY radio build-out scheduled for July

Carla Riehle

Forum Staff

Engineers from Philadelphia-based Prometheus Radio Project will be on hand the second week of July to complete the installation of broadcasting and recording equipment at WEQY FM, the new East Side radio station. The studio, located at 790 East 7th Street, has already been outfitted with soundproof broadcasting booths opening out onto the location's storefront windows. Prometheus will also erect the station's antenna and transmitter atop one of the outbuildings at 180 Degrees at East 7th and Johnson Parkway and begin testing the signal.

A number of new, locally originated programs have slotted in under the oversight of the WEQY Advisory Committee, with the expectation that broadcasting will start sometime in August. Dayton's Bluff Community Council Program Manager Brenda Reid says she expects that in its initial few months the station will meet the FCC minimum requirement of 36 hours a week air time and gradually increase the number of hours over the ensuing few months. Programming that reflects the make-up and interests of the East Side community is still being sought; anyone interested in participating should contact Brenda at Brenda@daytonsbuff.org or 651-621-2760. And be sure to watch for an announcement of the station's grand opening early in the fall.

Nick Duncan

Unless you live in a cave, you've already heard about our new neighbor in Lowertown. And even if you do reside in a cave you would have still seen the fireworks after every Friday night home game.

On Thursday, May 21, the St Paul Saints played their first game at CHS Field in Lowertown, just down the slope from Dayton's Bluff. By all accounts, the new stadium has been a hit with fans and media alike. Over 8,500 fans crowded in for opening night. In the local dailies and on the local newscasts we've seen stories on everything from the locker rooms to the food and beer options to the environmentally friendly features of the new ball park.

The Pioneer Press and the Star Tribune have also covered the Lowertown neighborhood around CHS Field in-depth with restaurant reviews and parking suggestions. The Trib even has a fun little bird's-eye map of the entire Lowertown neighborhood west of the ballpark with cartoons featuring area businesses and restaurants.

Swede Hollow Archaeology

St. Paul's Swede Hollow Park will be getting an archaeological look this summer to better understand its role in the city's history, according to University of Minnesota graduate students Stefanie Kowalczyk and Kelly Wolf. The two are heading up the project.

Swede Hollow, located in the East Side of Saint Paul, was originally home to Swedish immigrants who lived in former fur trader cabins in the 1850s. They called it Svenska Dalen, or Swedish Dale, and the name stuck. By the 1900s, the population grew to about 1,000 people, and Italian immigrants began replacing the Swedes.

When the Italians and Swedes eventually moved out, Mexican migrant workers settled in the Hollow in the 1930s. By 1956, there were 16 families remaining in the Hollow when the City of Saint Paul reviewed the area as part of Urban Renewal. During the review, the city found hazardous living conditions including a contaminated water source, and relocated the residents. According to Wolf, the area was allowed to grow wild and became an unofficial dumping ground until the 1970s when a joint effort with the Saint Paul Garden Club made the area into the park we know today.

"The public will be invited to visit the project," Kowalczyk says, which is expected to start July 31. Visitors will be encouraged to ask questions and learn about the history of Swede Hollow and the archaeology process. There are also volunteer opportunities available. For more information go to www.SwedeHollowArchaeology.wordpress.com, or contact Kowalczyk at kowal169@umn.edu and Wolf at wolfx609@umn.edu.

Mounds Park Barber Stylists

Mark Gallagher
Forum Editorial Associate

Judy Lee, owner of Mounds Park Barber Stylists has been cutting and styling hair for over 31 years. All those years have been at the same location, 1043 Hudson Road. In the mid 1980s, Judy was serving an apprenticeship at a little neighborhood barbershop in St. Anthony Park when her boss became aware of a shop coming up for sale in Dayton's Bluff. Judy realized it was close to home and as she likes to say, "I just went for it and bought the shop."

Judy got off to a serendipitous start in the haircutting industry. She met a friend who was going to barber school, and the friend suggested that Judy investigate some barber schools. A little while later, she met a gentleman who was on the board of directors in the barber industry. He was so encouraging that Judy decided to check out the two barber schools in the area and eventually enrolled in one of them.

St. Paul Barber School was located at 7th Street and Chestnut in the building where Cosetta's now is. At that time, barber school involved nine months of training and a 2500-hour internship. The barber school was held Tuesday through Saturday for eight hours a day. Judy went to the school, studied hard, practiced cutting hair, passed the required tests, and began an apprenticeship.

After the apprenticeship, Judy decided to go for it and become her own boss. "I value the freedom that owning my own business enables me to have," she says. Freedom from micromanaging bosses, freedom from time clocks, and freedom from difficult fellow employees are some of the tangible benefits that she appreciates. Judy sets her own schedule, plans her own vacation, enjoys her regular clients, and extends her hand to welcome any new visitors to her modest shop.

"I think the friendships and the cliental are the most rewarding thing; you become just like family, you know," Judy says in her heartfelt way. "I have a few third-generation families that I cut hair for. Sometimes we barber/stylists have to be a psychologist to some people. You know it's true when they say, 'Only your hairdresser knows for sure.'"

Even average days for Judy can vary quite a bit. "I've had days where I've done two haircuts, and I've had days where I have done ten or twelve," Judy says. "I allow thirty minutes between haircuts because that gives me time if someone is a little late or time to cleanup between clients. "You know, a lot of people think that barbers having Mondays off was a law," Judy says. "It wasn't. It's the barber's choice, but Saturdays were always busy for the barbers, and having Monday off gave them a consecutive two-day weekend.

"In my years as a barber, I have met so many really, really nice people," Judy reflects. "My clients pretty much come from the neighborhood, but there are people who drive quite a ways. Some have come from about 15 or 20 miles away. My most loyal client has been coming to my shop for probably 30 years. That's what barbers strive for — longevity and loyalty."

Judy's shop is open Tuesday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., "If it is a busy day on Saturday," Judy says, "I'll stay open longer — I will work as late as it takes." Judy's business card reads: APPOINTMENTS AVAILABLE TUESDAY THRU SATURDAY. CALL 651-771-6980.

CHS Field

Some of us here on the Bluff were a little disappointed that the map—and the hype, seems to have cut itself off beyond the left field fence, at the eastern edge of CHS Field. Not to be deterred, the Dayton's Bluff District Forum took a little field trip down to CHS Field to see what our new neighbor has to offer those of us up here on Dayton's Bluff.

The first question we wanted to answer was is the new stadium drawing fans to Dayton's Bluff establishments like it's drawing them to Lowertown bars and restaurants?

On a beautiful Friday evening in early June, the first place Saints were at home against rival Sioux City Canaries. Game attendance that night was over 7,000.

An hour before game time, Mounds Park Sports Bar manager, Dave Spiess, was busy overseeing the weekly Friday meat raffle. The Mounds Park Sports Bar near the corner of Earl and Hudson was bustling with an impressive happy hour crowd. Spiess has taken notice of the popularity of the Saints but has yet to see that popularity translate into increased business at the Mounds Park Sports Bar.

Still, Spiess points out that CHS Field and it's proximity to our neighborhood does offer some potential opportunities for the Mounds Park Sports Bar. They are seriously considering offering a shuttle service to all home games.

A little farther north at the Flat Earth Brewery, the Friday night crowd is busy sampling small tastes of beer, eating pizza, playing with canine friends, and ordering growlers to go. Co-owner, Franco Claseman, points out that Flat Earth has a direct connection with the new stadium. Two of Flat Earth's beers are offered on tap at CHS Field's very popular Beer Dabbler Craft Beer Garden located just beyond the left field fence of the new stadium.

Flat Earth, which occupies a portion of the old Hamm's Brewery on Minnehaha, is easily the coolest space for a brew pub in the entire Twin Cities. It is also a prime Dayton's Bluff location to benefit from the new Saints crowd. A short walk through beautiful, historic, Swede Hollow connects Flat Earth with CHS Field. Claseman and the other Flat Earth owners are well aware of this potential windfall and are busy putting the final touches on Flat Earth's official, fully-operational brew pub which is set to open very soon.

On to our visit to CHS Field itself, let's start with getting down the hill. Considering there are exactly zero businesses on it, Commercial Street might be the worst named street in St Paul, and that's saying something. The desolate 3/4 mile road that begins near the northwest corner of Mounds Park, winds down the slope along Interstate 94, under the Third Street bridge, past the Bruce Vento Nature Sanctuary, under a couple of ancient railroad bridges, and at some unknown point morphs into Fourth Street.

Commercial Street is also the back door to CHS Field. Just 3/4 of a mile long with a beautiful bike/walking trail, Commercial Street allows Dayton's Bluff residents easy access to the ballpark and the parking lots nearby without the traffic backups on Third or Seventh Streets.

From the inside, CHS Field is fantastic. It's open, not crowded, the sightlines are great. There are real seats—not benches, many more bathrooms, and despite long concession lines, everyone seems to be having a great time.

Clyde Boysen and Rose Marie Felsheim have been Saints season ticket holders since the team's beginning in 1993. They have also been residents of Dayton's Bluff for over 35 years. On this beautiful June evening they are nestled in their seats in section 109 behind home plate, exchanging pleasantries with fellow Saints fans and enjoying the game.

Boysen explains that though he was a big advocate for moving the Saints to Lowertown, he was a little worried that the Saints experience would lose some of its character when the team left Midway Stadium. His fears were alleviated the minute he walked into CHS Field. "I love, love, love the new ballpark," proclaimed Boysen. Clearly, he's not the only one.

But what impact will the new ballpark have on Dayton's Bluff? Though there is a lot of optimism from the meat raffle-ees at the Mounds Park Sports Bar, to the brewery owner at Flat Earth, to the season ticket holders, the consensus seems to be that it's still too soon to tell.

Robert Frost once wrote "good fences make good neighbors," and though he may not have been referring to left field fences at minor league ballparks, a lot of us up here on the Bluff are hoping CHS Field will blossom into a very good neighbor.

East Side Optimist Club

While Polachek was envisioning a way to bring baseball to the East Side, she also met a member of a Twin Cities Optimist Club who inspired her to develop a club serving St. Paul's East Side. The club was chartered on November 13, 2014. Polachek ignited her passion for baseball in the club's new members and they went right to work on the Sandlot Baseball Day, offering baseball activities to neighborhood youth.

Polachek and Anderson met with Alex Glass, the Program Director for the East Side's new Arlington Hills Community Center. Glass immediately saw the value in the program. A partnership evolved in that first meeting. Saturday, May 2, was chosen for the inaugural Sandlot Baseball Day.

During the winter months several sign-ups were conducted at the rec center and Dayton's Bluff American Indian Magnet School. A week prior to the event over 2,000 fliers were printed, rolled and delivered to doors in the neighborhood. 87-year-old Kitty Anderson baked and decorated 500 baseball cookies for the event.

From 10:00 a.m. to noon, baseball clinics were conducted by Steve Winfield (brother of legendary baseball player Dave Winfield). 1:00 p.m. brought a mini parade featuring Farnsworth Aerospace School's 300-member band and Harding High School's Navy ROTC color guard. Polachek, on an adult tricycle as Joanie Baseball Seed, led the parade in a Minnesota Twins uniform.

Polachek and City Council member Dan Bostrom spoke briefly before the movie Sandlot was shown courtesy of the Arlington Hills Public Library in the center's large meeting room.

The scoreboard for the day was 35 kids signed up, 180 hot dogs served, 300 bags of chips eaten and 410 juice packs sipped.

"We were pleased with the turnout as it was our first event and we were competing with some other community events," said Polachek. "We are looking forward to organizing a baseball game between our neighborhood youth and the St. Paul Police Department."

Urban Woods is a partnership between the Saint Paul East Side Optimist Club and the MN Department of Natural Resources. The site is sandwiched between the county compost site and the Case -Duluth Playground. Events are held in the solitude of the place which is ideal for youth to study and appreciate nature.

On May 22, a play was held there for daycare children. The brief production was The Jungle Book, utilizing actors from the City Academy. Being held in the hollow added to the specialness of the event.

The club is working with a group of new immigrant youth, the Karen, an ethnic refugee minority from Myanmar (formerly Burma). St Paul has the largest and fastest growing population of Karen in the country. The youth are ages 4-8 and have been playing "near ball."

Baseball diamond #5 is dedicating its use to the Optimists from 5:30 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. each Tuesday and Wednesday evening. This will involve older youth in the future. Club member Tom Russ is the volunteer caretaker of this special site. He and club members pick up trash on a weekly basis.

The Saint Paul East Side Optimist Club welcomes new members. It meets at Polly's Coffee Cove, 1382 Payne Avenue (at Cottage), twice each month on the second Thursday at 1:00 p.m. and the fourth Thursday at 6:00 p.m. Ann Polachek, Club President and owner of Polly's, can be reached at 651-206-6767 for more information.

Fred Kaphingst

Ann Polachek, president of the Saint Paul East Side Optimist Club and owner of Polly's Coffee Cove, could be seen as Joanie Baseball Seed on May 2 at the Sandlot Baseball Day mini parade.

Letter to the editor: This isn't my Saint Paul

G.B. LeRoy
Forum Reader

A week ago, I found an 88-page magazine insert from 2014 called This is my Saint Paul. I couldn't believe what I saw. It seems that our East Side doesn't rate as a part of the city—at least according to Visit Saint Paul, the official convention & visitors bureau that published it. I hope they didn't use any tax money to publish it! Even though we make up at least a third of the city, we were almost invisible in the slick booklet. There was a tiny mention and teensy photo of what they called Mounds Park, instead of its official name of Indian Mounds Park. They said that the burial mounds were “reminders of the Hopewell, the first of many Native American people to form settlements.” However, no one really knows who constructed the mounds or who were the “many” groups they assume came through.

On page 30 they mention the Bruce Vento Nature Sanctuary that they say is in Lowertown and that above it is Dayton's Bluff, the only time our neighborhood's name is noted. Five pages later in a “Brew Tour” spot they use one sentence to say the Flat Earth Brewing Company was in the “historic brewing complex on the East Side.” There are forty or so words and a small photo of the Dragon Festival in “Lake Phalen Park,” wherever that is. Phalen Golf Course was part of a list of golf courses.

On page 60 there is a two word mention of Flat Earth as part of a small insert called “Craft Beer Tap Rooms.” The end of the booklet has a list of a hundred or so members of the group that published it.

The only East Side place mentioned is the Minnesota Humanities Commission building on Ivy Street. Apparently all the places on the pages were members of the group who put out the booklet. Then again, why would any East Side groups belong to an organization that, in the words of youngsters, “disses” our neighborhoods?

Other areas of the city highlighted included Grand Avenue, Highland Park and other prosperous locations, although they did give a nod to the West Side. There was no mention of Payne Avenue, which was recently voted the best “eat street” in St. Paul. No mention of any of the diverse restaurants in the community.

Once again the powers-that-be ignored the existence of the East Side. The booklet is titled “This is my Saint Paul.” It's not the St. Paul that reflects my area. How could this happen? Is anyone one else angry at such things? Feel free to clip this article and send it to various local city leaders.

Construction continues at Metropolitan State University Parking Ramp and Student Center

Construction of the parking ramp has progressed significantly since the start of excavation and construction this time nearly a year ago. The parking ramp structure was completed this spring. Exterior finishes are well-over 75% complete including brick masonry, precast, exterior railing and decorative metal panels. Interior to the parking ramp equipment and finishes are also in place, which include entry/exit gates, parking accessories, and striping. The pedestrian stair and elevator tower has peaked to its final height; framing work is progressing and upon completion of framing the glass & glazing work shall follow. Wood trim and rough carpentry work a-top the tower are visible in the short-term; the final roofing, flashing, and finish materials will be completed in the next several weeks. In general, the parking ramp will be completed on schedule by July 2015.

Despite some early winter challenges to maintain a planned schedule of construction, the student center building continues to progress and is on schedule for completion in late summer/early fall 2015. The contractor has made great effort in 2015 to complete the building structure including foundations, masonry walls, and steel. The structure of the student center is completed with exterior work presently more than 85% completed. Rough openings in the building remain as the contractor is utilizing this as a means to get large materials and large volumes of materials in the building. As you pass by the building along Seventh Street, you can see interior framing of walls, along with mechanical duct work and plumbing risers. Interior walls will proceed once the exterior frame and glass is completed in June and July. Finishes and furnishings for the student center shall start late summer.

Municipal consent for the sound wall

Eric P. Zidlicky
Forum Reader

Councilman Finney,

Few words can accurately describe the level of disappointment I have for your actions at the council meeting on Wednesday, but I will try my best to make my feelings clear.

You were chosen to represent the interests of Ward 7. In reference to this sound wall, you heard from multiple sources who are against the wall. Dayton's Bluff Community Council voted unanimously against the sound wall. The HPC voted unanimously against the sound wall. The President of the D4 Community Council came before the City Council and spoke against the wall. Diane May, Board Member of Dayton's Bluff Neighborhood Housing Services came and spoke against the wall, twice. And I spoke against the wall, twice. Exactly how many residents of the ward you represent did you hear from that spoke in favor of the wall? How many residents of the ward you represent spoke in favor of the auxiliary lane? No one came to either Council meeting to speak in favor of the lane or the wall. The only person who seemed to think the lane and wall was a good idea was C.M. Bostrom, who should have little influence over this project which is not in his ward.

I am not sure that you understand the whole scope of the project. Before Wednesday's meeting, I was briefed that the entire project, including the resurfacing of Interstate 94, may be scrapped if the auxiliary lane/sound wall was not given consent. However, the gentleman from MNDOT said that the resurfacing project would go on with or without the auxiliary lane/sound wall. He was crystal clear about that at the last meeting, and reiterated it at Wednesday's meeting. Yet, even with that information, you moved to grant municipal consent. You delayed voting from the last meeting to allow HPC time to give their input. They came back against the wall, and you pushed it forward anyway.

Your actions were a blatant slap in the face to the people like me who attended meeting after meeting, giving input to the project, thinking their input would be utilized. I took time off work to attend these meetings because I passionately believed my input would make a difference—clearly, not as much as I thought. That was a huge waste of my time.

This auxiliary lane will likely do little to help the people in your ward. It will certainly help the people who are leaving the city at night to drive to the suburbs and to Wisconsin get home faster. I'm glad I can sacrifice my quality of life to improve theirs, since I am a homeowner in, and a taxpayer of, the City of St. Paul. How many more sacrifices will I be asked to give to others before the people who are chosen to represent our best interests actually stand up for those constituents? You won't even be in office when this whole project begins and the people of Ward 7 will be left to deal with the results of this poor decision.

The motion led by you and approved by the full Council to grant municipal consent to the auxiliary lane/sound wall was wrong. You chose the traffic on the freeway over the people of your ward. I hope that you listen more closely to the residents you represent in the future. We would like the opportunity to come meet with you either in your office or in the neighborhood itself, sometime in the next four weeks, to discuss how we can help make the best of the situation.

Respectfully,

Eric P. Zidlicky

The Fish Hatchery—yesterday and today

Steve Trimble
Forum Historian

In early May I received a call from Tori J. McCormick, a free lance writer who wanted to have a story about the St. Paul Fish Hatchery ready for the opening of walleye fishing season. He had talked to Department of Natural Resources (DNR) employees about current activities and asked me to add historical information. I was quoted a few times in his May 2015 Minneapolis Star Tribune article. I already wrote an article for the Forum some years ago, but there are a lot of new people in the neighborhood, so it seemed all right to once again tell the story of the development of our own Fish Hatchery.

The State Fish Hatchery was established in 1877 underneath the bluffs of our neighborhood. It was initially called the Willow Brook Hatchery and later the Mounds Park Hatchery. The location was ideal since several artesian wells provided plenty of the cool water that was needed. The hatchery was given a state mandate to raise fish to stock Minnesota's streams and lakes. It was such a prestigious institution that Minneapolis unsuccessfully tried to steal it for themselves a few years later.

The hatchery was meant to be a place for holding and rearing fish due to its shipping station and location near the local rail yards. The water was diverted into channels and several hatchery ponds. A variety of fish species, from brook trout to walleye, were raised and transported statewide by railroad box cars. In the early days, milk cans were used for shipping containers.

People and families walked or rode in carriages to the hatchery from Indian Mounds Park, often spending the day. It was a great place to walk, look at the fish, have a picnic, and take in the views of the Mississippi, which were, and still are, very scenic. At one time, there was even a small zoo there with Minnesota animals.

The hatchery grounds had grown to twenty two acres in the early 1900s, and the site became a major tourist attraction. The St. Paul Association of Commerce said this in a pamphlet: "There is no more beautiful spot around Saint Paul on a summer's day than this pretty little valley, far from the sounds of the great city—the wooded hills carpeted with emerald grass...the many-colored trout jumping in little ponds, and the great river sliding lazily in the sunlight." By the 1930s, increased automobile use allowed recreation seekers to travel outside of St. Paul and the metro area. Interest in the hatchery as an attraction started to decline.

The hatchery has been remodeled several times and starting in the 1960s, operations were downsized. Only two of the seven original spring-fed ponds are now in use, and the amount of water in some of them has diminished because of urban development around the hatchery. In 1994, the hatchery's cold-water portion was closed. Today the hatchery and the buildings serve as the headquarters of the DNR's central region. They are open to visitors, but be sure to call first. They are also having some programs this summer for area youth at 1200 Warner Road.

The hatchery now produces pure-strain walleyes and some hybrids. Donn Schrader, who has been fascinated by fish since childhood, earned a fisheries management degree from the University of Minnesota. He now manages the St. Paul Fish Hatchery. Each spring, Schrader, often called "Papa Walleye," receives 20 million to 30 million fertilized walleye eggs from DNR crews who extract them in several locations in Minnesota. They come in water-filled plastic bags. Schrader and his helpers hatch them and keep them for a time until they are fry (2 to 4 days old walleyes) or fingerlings, which are around four to eight inches long.

They are sent all over the state to stock bodies of water. Some will have a short life span, often eaten by other fish, but others will survive for years and grow to a large size. While the DNR stresses the importance of protecting and improving natural fish habitat and water quality, some lakes are not suitable habitat for natural breeding. Stocking continues to be an important activity that supports Minnesota sport fishing.

In addition to the St. Paul site, the DNR operates 15 other fish hatcheries across the state—five for cold-water species such as trout and 11 for walleyes, muskies, northern pike and some catfish. But our local institution is the main place where walleyes begin their life. So if you are one of our readers, next time you reel in a walleye and decide to keep rather than release, you may well be bringing it back home.

To read a full account of the Minneapolis Star Tribune article written by Tori J. McCormick, you can look it up on line by entering "Hatchery is a chapter in Minnesota walleye story" into a search engine. If you want to read a longer article I wrote on the Fish Hatchery, put "DBDF October 2007 articles" in a keyword search and then scroll down to "Something Fishy in Dayton's Bluff Or Down the Fish Hatchery Road."

Mounds Park: Then & Now

Nick Duncan
Forum Contributor

The early spring provided an opportunity to better appreciate the rich history of Mounds Park. With no snow cover and little to no foliage to obscure the view, a walk through the back country of Mounds Park reveals a long history of human habitation of the area. Thanks to the Minnesota Historical Society, the Forum has found some photos of Mounds Park from bygone days and matched them up with some current photos of the same locations. Each month we'll take a look at two new locations, past and present.

East Side Eating – Trimble's Taste Trek

Forum contributor Steve Trimble is attempting to eat at every locally-owned, sit-down restaurant on the East Side in 2015. He hopes to get the word out to the Dayton's Bluff community about the eating options here on our side of town. There are more restaurants than there is room for in the monthly paper; but at least 22 may now be found online at daytonsbuffdistrictforum.org: click on "East Side Eating" on the top of the home page.

Romolo's Restaurant, located at 1409 Arcade Street, has been an East Side landmark since the 1960s.

June 8, 2015: Sadly, by the time you reads this, Romolo's will exist only in customers' fond memories. Romolo Monda opened this East Side landmark in the late 1960s. He retired in 2007 and his son Jay ran the restaurant until 2011, when he sold it to Fred Richie, one of his father's oldest friends. Fred kept many of the old recipes and added others. One of the most notable, the "Fred Special," was a meatball sandwich with red sauce and mozzarella cheese. In fact, Richie's childhood nickname was "Meatball Man."

After the word of Romolo's closing on June 14, scads of people streamed to the place for a last visit. I had to hurry to add it to the Taste Trek. I arrived around 7:00 p.m.. There were a few open tables in the two dining rooms with their walls filled with historic photos of area families and sports teams.

The restaurant featured many Italian favorites, such as mostaccoli, but also "American" sandwiches, burgers and "American" dinners such as broasted chicken and chopped sirloin. Here is a sampling of the menu: Appetizers, including pizza fries and Italian sausage with green peppers and onions. Antipasto salad, Caesar salad. A plethora of pizza, wings, and spumoni ice cream. Italian sandwiches included "hot dagos" and "saucy hot dagos," a sausage patty smothered in red sauce.

I chose baked lasagna with bread and, since it was an Italian restaurant, I had a Peroni beer. They did have wine and locally brewed Flat Earth beer.

I decided to order-in take-out a "Fred Special" for the next day's lunch. When Fred died a little over a year ago one of his five children took over, but after a family vote, they decided to sell the business and while there are no details it may become an Asian restaurant.

"I'll leave you with a slogan Fred printed on his menu: "Amilizie e maccheroni, sono meglio caldi," which translates to "friendship and macaroni are best when warm."
